

Honouring Language Martyrs: SJWS Observes International Mother Language Day with Reverence

Sir John Wilson School commemorated International Mother Language Day on 19th February 2025 with solemnity across its Gulshan and Main Campus. The event aimed to instill respect for one's native language while promoting linguistic and cultural diversity. Throughout the month, students were educated on the significance of the day and the sacrifices made during the Language Movement.

On the occasion, students dressed in traditional black and white attire and brought flowers to pay tribute to the martyrs who secured the right to speak in their mother tongue. The programme began with a teacher's speech, highlighting the importance of preserving and respecting one's language.

In the Early Section, Playgroup children enthusiastically displayed Bangla alphabets to a melodious tune, while Nursery students sang a patriotic Bangla song. KG-I students recited a classic Bangla poem. In the Middle Section, selected students from Class 4 performed a song, and KG-II students recited a patriotic poem. Following the cultural performances, students from both sections solemnly placed flowers at the Shaheed Minar, expressing their love, gratitude and respect for the martyrs. SJWS continuously encourages its students to appreciate the sacrifices that granted them the right to speak in their mother tongue and emphasizes the importance of learning and using it correctly.
